MIX UP IN NORTH DAKOTA POLITICS

Seven Candidates Running for Office in Special Election to Be Held Tomorrow.

FARGO, N. D., July 9.—A complicated congressional campaign will end tomorrow in a special election in the First North Dakota district to choose a successor to the late H. T. Helgesen. There are seven candidates resulting from a mixup in Republican circles and the entry into politics of the Non-Partisan League, the farmers' organization, which swept the state on a public ownership campaign last fall. Its candidate is John M. Baer, of Fargo. George A. Bangs, of Grand Forks, is the Democratic candidate and H. H. Aker, of Fargo, is running as a "non-partisan Progressive Republican."

There are four names on the Republican column, Henry C. Vick, of Cavalier; Oliver Burtness, Grand Forks; F. T. Cuthbert, Devils Lake, and Charles W. Plain, Milton. Their names were presented by petitions to the secretary of state. Later they agreed to abide by the decision of a convention which chose Burtness, but mandamus proceedings in the supreme court failed to force omission of the other names from the official ballots.

The campaign of the Non-Partisan League on behalf of Baer has been vigorous because of the organization's attitude toward the Liberty Loan and other war revenue measures.

AIR ATTACK ON KRUPP WORKS

French Aviator Describes His Long Journey to City of Essen, Germany.

GRAND HEADQUARTERS OF THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, Sunday, July 8 (by the Associated Press).—The most daring air raid yet carried out against the great Krupp munition works at Essen was recounted to a staff correspondent of the Associated Press today by Sergeant Maximilian Gallois, who defied all the German anti-aircraft defenses and bombarded the heart of the German armament-producing factories with high explosives, crossed the German front line twice, saw over many Rhinish cities and reached home unscathed.

The whole flight lasted seven hours, during which the daring French aviator was guided only by the moon and stars in the darkest hours of the night, the destination being reached exactly, according to plan. Sergeant Gallois narrated his story in the simplest manner.

"For of us, Lieutenant Ardisson de Perduquer, Sergeant Lardou, another comrade and myself, left our base at nightfall Friday with the intention of reaching Essen," he said. "Soon afterward we ran into foggy weather and lost sight of each other. I flew at an altitude of 1200 meters and passed over Metz and Thionville, following the course of the river Moselle, which, however, rapidly disappeared in the mist."

"The batteries fired at me crossing the Rhine, and as I passed over Metz searchlights played about the sky. At Thionville I heard another airplane nearby, but made it out to be Ardisson's. Afterward I was compelled to travel by the aid of the compass, the stars and the moon."

"At Treves I saw a heavy bombardment, which I calculated was directed at my comrade. Therefore I knew I was traveling in the right direction. I did not see Coblenz. I saw the reflection of the moon on the Rhine and found Bonn. From there to Dusseldorf there was a regular sea of electricity, which increased as I got farther north."

"Cologne was a blaze of luminosity, and at Dusseldorf there were all kinds of lights, blue, red and white. All the time the anti-aircraft guns fired as I passed, and around Cologne the gunners were very accurate in the range."

"Leaving there, I saw, like cliffs on the horizon, a brilliant illumination which seemed kilometers in length, stretching to the left of Essen, while southward was another long line of lights coming from the factories. Arriving over Essen, I rose to about 2000 meters. I circled around, searching for a place where the lights from the workshops appeared dimmest."

"Then I threw the first bomb. After counting ten I dropped the second, and then the remainder of the ten bombs I carried at similar intervals. I could not tell whether the bombs exploded, but they probably did. It was impossible to distinguish their effect, owing to the flaming furnace chimneys."

"My duty done, I turned homeward, not having seen my comrades again. The motor worked with wonderful regularity all the time. I came back exactly the same way as I went and was fired at many times."

"I was thoroughly exhausted and was suffering from my eyes, which were affected by the strain and wind, as I had lost both pairs of goggles at the start and was often obliged to put my head outside in order to see the direction. When nearing the base, owing to the darkness, I could not tell where I was. I thought possibly I was still over the German lines and decided to continue westward as long as the petrol lasted. I had a few liters left and was driving onward, when suddenly I recognized a prearranged signal and managed to land just at dawn at the same place from which I had departed. The distance covered was 750 kilometers (466 1/2 miles)."

The correspondent says the notes made by Gallois during the flight. There were just a few words and figures marking the places sighted and the hours of arrival. The last entry is:

"Essen. It is there," showing that he reached that point on schedule time.

Sergeant Gallois, who is 38 years old, served in the dragons when the war broke out. He passed a short time in the hospital where sick horses are cared for. He tried to exchange to the auto-cannon battery, but was told he was too old. He applied four times for the aviation corps unsuccessfully, but was accepted on the fifth application, though he had no knowledge of flying. He rapidly learned and overcame the difficulties in night flying, which enabled him to carry out his latest expedition with success. He took part in several other bombing flights over the German lines.

His comrades, Lieutenant Ardisson and Sergeant Durand, both returned to the French base, having gone as far as Treves, when they found that their supply of gasoline would not permit them to reach Essen, so they dropped all their bombs on Treves before flying home.

It is believed that the fourth man reached and bombed Essen, but he has not returned to the base. When Gallois landed he was unable to get out of his machine owing to fatigue and semi-blindness, but today is quite recovered and is prepared to undertake further expeditions. He told the correspondent that he had never been a great sportsman, except so far as concerned cycling, but when called to arms, was anxious to do his best for his country.

The official communication issued from headquarters tells the story of the performances of other bombing squadrons the same day. They are always busy bombarding the enemy's munition depots, railroad stations and gun emplacements, to which they are largely confining their attention. Experts say, however, that they could at any moment gather together hundreds of airplanes which could proceed in swarms and throw many tons of explosives on German cities that could be easily reached. The French (from lines). But the entire allies up to the present have refrained from doing this, as with them military objectives take first place.

Another branch of French aviation, namely, the fighting machines, which come more before the public view, has made a wonderful record during the Alsace offensive. They fought 2995 air duels within the German lines, whether they went to seek their opponents, while the German airmen fought only 312 duels within the French lines in the same period.

I. W. W. TO TIE UP INDUSTRIES

GLOBE, Ariz., July 10.—Categorical denials were made today by the representatives of the Industrial Workers of the World that their organization was under German influence, that a revolutionary movement had been planned by the Industrial Workers of the World and that guns or ammunition had been cached in mining camps and elsewhere in the district.

This denial was made at the meeting of the Industrial Workers of the World committee and the state and federal joint mediation board, which is making an effort to settle the Metal Miners' strike in this district. There were eight delegates of the local organizations, composing the Industrial Workers of the World in this district and an open and frank discussion of the strike issues was held with James H. Chapman, local leader of the Industrial Workers of the World, acting as spokesman for his committee.

The meeting between the joint mediation board and the Industrial Workers of the World committee was without friction and one of the mediators expressed his surprise at the mild manner of the committeemen. The strongest statement made at the meeting was to the effect that, whether or not a strike was won in any one particular district, the men would not be permitted to return to work, but would remain out on strike until the men in all of the other districts of the southwest had won their strike.

It also became known after the conference today that the Industrial Workers of the World leaders have enlarged their tentative threat to tie up all the metal mines of the country, the wheat fields and the railroads by adding the coal mines and oil fields to the list. This was learned from one of the Industrial Workers of the World committeemen and is said to be a part of the general plan for forcing the mine operators to grant their demands.

HAWAIIANS EAGER TO GO TO FRANCE

pleas to be sent to France to join the American forces there are being made by 3,000 Hawaiian militiamen, according to J. Kubio Kalaniana'ole, the Hawaiian delegate in congress, who is urging favorable action by the war department.

The question of food supply, it is said, enters into the problem of what disposition is to be made of the Hawaiian forces for Hawaii is looked to furnish much of the United States' sugar and rice needs.

"Our men want to get into the fight right away," said Mr. Kalaniana'ole, who expressed the hope that the department would immediately order the militiamen into the federal service.

ASSESSMENT WORK TO BE SUSPENDED

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The senate today adopted a joint resolution by Senator Shafroth suspending for the period of the Montana Power company began the $100 worth of labor or improvements shall be performed on each mining claim during each year for all owners who in lieu of such assessment work expend the sum of $100 in producing products necessary for the support of the army or navy or the people of the United States or shall perform twenty-five days of labor in any beneficial capacity.

ELECTRICIANS MAKE DEMANDS BUTTE, Mont., July 9.—What was expected to be the final session of the conference between the striking electricians and the Montana Power company began this morning. Before the meeting it was stated by participants that the conferees had agreed on all major questions regarding the demands of electricians.

R. F. Dunne, chairman of the electricians' strike committee, it is said, is the only disturbing factor in the peace. He has demanded as a condition precedent to returning to work of the electricians that all persons who have done work under jurisdiction of the electricians during the strike be discharged. As this would involve the dismissal of officers and foremen of the company, refusal of its consideration was announced.

STOPPING EXPORT TO THE NEUTRALS

Denmark May Not Be Allowed to Receive Supplies From U. S.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—An immediate decision as to the policy to be pursued toward the European neutral countries in the administration of export control confronted the United States with the receipt of an application from the Danish government to export ten cargoes of meal cake for use as cattle feed.

The application will go to the exports council for consideration. It was one of more than a hundred which came to the department of commerce during the day asking permission to ship various commodities out of the United States under export licensing becomes operative July 15.

The exports council's advisory board, created to relieve members of the council of details of operations of the act was formally organized yesterday with the following members: Edward N. Hurley, former chairman of the federal trade commission, representing the department of commerce; Vance C. McCormick, representing the state department; Dr. Alonso E. Taylor of the University of Pennsylvania, representing the department of agriculture; B. D. White, representing the food administration, and Dr. E. E. Pratt, chief of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, as secretary. It is probable that a representative will be named later from the shipping board.

Denmark's application today puts up to this government the determination of just how far it will use the embargo power in preventing supplies from reaching Germany. Although there is no fear that the cattle feed itself will go through to Germany, Denmark has been exporting to the central powers large quantities of dairy products. Officials of this government hold divergent views on the general principle involved. Some want to stop shipment of every class of supplies from the neutrals to Germany, while others believe that course would be unjust and desire to prevent shipment to Germany of only those goods which are replaced by American commodities.

The British government, meantime, is urging that the United States make an effort to prevent all supplies from reaching Germany.

Officials agree that exports from the neutrals to Germany must cease if the United States is to continue to furnish the neutrals with foodstuffs. For that reason it was considered likely that a license would be refused for the Danish meal cake purchases unless Denmark is ready to come to a definite understanding regarding dairy exports and perhaps food exports of all kinds.

Neutral countries that have made large purchases of grains in the United States, hoping to get it out of country before the export control become operative, have been thwarted. It is learned today, by the British government, which has declined to assure safe voyage for food cargoes. Many cargoes awaiting shipment in American ports have not moved for this reason. The Danish meal cake, it is said, would have been on the high seas already but for the British action.

Kingston, Canada, separate school teachers were given a bonus of $50 because of the high cost of living.
